Introductory Video Transcript

When you volunteer for a clinical trial, you have the power to help bring new medicines and vaccines to the world. Now, there's an easy way to help find the next medical breakthrough—for you, and for all.

Hi. We're PfizerLink, your clinical trial connector—here so you can become part of the clinical research that matters to you.

Simply tell us about your health and medical areas of interest, and we'll check your information against available Pfizer clinical trials. If we find a clinical trial that may be right for you, we'll connect you with a study doctor in your area.

You can choose if you want to participate in clinical trials or just share a bit about you and your health. Either way, with PfizerLink you can make a difference—in your life and the lives of others. Join today for the opportunity to connect to clinical research and help power breakthroughs.
